Financial Aid

Rockhurst University has an extensive financial aid program aimed at helping all students who are academically qualified to attend the University. Our programs include all federal and state aid programs as well as institutional aid. Eligible students may receive assistance, which includes scholarships, grants, loans, and work-study programs.

Eligibility for Financial Aid

All degree-seeking students are eligible to apply for financial aid. Eligibility for specific need-based assistance is based upon federal standards. Eligibility for merit-based assistance by the University is detailed in the University Catalog.

Applying for Financial Aid

Interested students should submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) to the Central Processor prior to March 1st if the planned date of entry to Rockhurst is the fall semester. Students entering the spring or summer terms should complete a FAFSA as soon as possible. Financial aid is awarded on a first-come, first-served basis.

All merit scholarships are awarded on a rolling basis once the student is admitted to the University. No separate application is necessary. Any combination of gift aid from institutional and outside resources will not exceed the student's actual cost of attendance.

Rockhurst has a number of payment programs available for students. Students are billed prior to the beginning of a term. Payment arrangements must be finalized prior to the start of the term. Students may pay in the following ways:
